PRECIOUS WORDS

He ate and drank the precious words ,

His spirit grew robust;

He knew no more that he was poor ,

Nor that his fame was dust .

He danced along the dingy days ,

And this bequest of wings

Was but a BOOK. What LIBERTY

A loosened SPIRIT brings !

Emily Dickinson

FOREWORD

Many of the books listed in this bibliography have been evaluated and tested through use by the compiler.

The term reading level or "RL" is used throughout this compilation. This term is used to indicate the approximate READING AGE of the student.

For the public schools and libraries, the term "GRADE" is used.

Books have been listed alphabetically, except in a few cases where the author's placement was given first consideration.

Titles have been listed first rather than authors, because they represent reader's interests - so serve as guides to book location.

The bibliography has been arranged in the following sections:

- A. Books suggested for Reading Levels 1-5
- B. Library Materials for Students, Teachers and Writers
- C. Reference Sources for Teachers and Writers
 - 1. Basic Reading Aids
 - 2. Bibliographies and Handbooks
 - 3. Theory and Techniques of Literacy
- D. Publisher's Directory
- E. Appendix

PREFACE

For the 40% of mankind still illiterate, the acquisition of basic reading skills is not sufficient.

Only through continued reading can the new literate acquire information needed to enrich his life.

Reading materials must be chosen or designed for the new reader.

These materials must meet the reader's needs both in content and in reading level.

Format and content must awaken desire and effort to READ TO LEARN.

The purpose of this bibliography is to aid in meeting the above need.

Sincere appreciation is expressed:

to the many people who have shared their research experience in the field of literacy;

to the grateful students who have proven the above statement to be true;

and to all others who have contributed their services for the compilation of this data.

Adult interests are an outgrowth of home and community life. The parent - himself a new reader - desires to read with his children. Thus some books of interest to children of various ages have been included in this compilation.

UNESCO (Paris, France) sent booklets being used by new literates. These represent publishers in England, France, Latin America, Africa and the U.S.A. All express similar community interests.

These approaches recognize literacy as a local problem, thus individual and group needs are being studied. Booklets are being produced to meet these needs and to bridge the gaps in background experiences.

For example, topics for new literates include: agriculture, citizenship, economics, education, fables and fairy tales, government - local and national - games, history, home life, hotel keeping, protective laws, notes for Christian teaching, marriage, poetry, and wonders of astronomy.

The titles below represent contributions by writers from many areas of the U.S.A. and nearby countries, for the new literate. This need offers a challenge to every literate adult to lend a hand with a pen.

Daughter Knows Best - sometimes! - Thomas Wiggins, M.D.
